Sky Pies

"There are now millions of people who spend more time watching food being cooked on television than they spend actually cooking it themselves." - Michael Pollan, critical food author In a future where we outsource all of our food production, home cooking has become a hobby instead of a necessity. Similar to sewing one's own clothing or having a vegetable garden. What would we miss if we didn’t cook anymore? Would we still have kitchens? What would they look like? The game explores the idea of a virtual kitchen but turns it into an adventurous and physical experience. Players use the controller add-on “utensils” to harvest items from the virtual foodscape and create fictional “meals”.
