

The Whispering Wood

Room for listening to the voice of a tree / Phase 3 of 'According to the Grain' project

/

Hosted by: Studio Sho Ota

Project Information (EN)

Room for listening to the voice of a tree

A room, which imitates a living space, where several objects are placed inside. Each object is a development from Ota's previous project, namely, "According to the Grain" where the objects are carved out to expose the natural knots within a tree. While the same technique is being used, in this project some of the objects aggressively presents itself, others secretly whisper to their origins, and some simply pretends to be an existing product. If you listen closely, visitors can listen to the subtle breathings of the material and by observing the texture of the object with their hands, feet and eyes the visitor can receive their unspoken words. This exhibition is part of RE FORM Biennale 2020.

Projectinformatie (NL)

/

/

Image List

Filename	Caption	Credit
3thewisperingwood_1630658298.jpg	rendering image	Studio Sho Ota
33detail_1630658738.jpg	detail picture of chiseled out knots	Studio Sho Ota
35process_1630658745.jpg	process picture	Studio Sho Ota
31thewisperingwood_1630658752.jpg	rendering image of coat rack

The images above are included in the ZIP under /images.