

REwild gatherings

Project Information (EN)

we invite you to share time in the garden; our informal and collectively run evening program offers food, music, and space to re-create in nature. with the infrastructure of our starter kit at the pilot location we are bridging ecological awareness and hands-on engagement. by reclaiming urban space and co-creating with community and soil, we empower autonomy within our food systems – attentively determining how we build the worlds we live in. to rewild is to resist dependency and reimagine freedom not as an escape from the world, but as a deeper reciprocity within it. with this in mind, you are welcome to join us as a guest, free of charge and with no obligation. we are not orienting these events on profit, but your contributions will directly crowdfund future steps of our project. you are welcome to gather in our garden for informal and collectively run evening program. check below and please be aware of our social media for changes and updates (@rewild.farming) at spoorzone fuutlaan, we have transformed an abandoned industrial plot (planned to become a park around 2030) into a thriving green space using our starter kit: a modular workspace in a repurposed shipping container. we grow food and community, and we are part of a wider, urgent movement to regenerate not only soil, but also social order. by lowering the threshold to regenerative farming practices and restoring agency within our food system, our pilot project at spoorzone fuutlaan has become a communal third space. we invite you to join us and experience more-than-human collectivity during our DDW evening gatherings. we will be open from 17 – 22 to serve you fermented drinks, hot wholesomeness and fresh food from our open kitchen.

Projectinformatie (NL)

we invite you to share time in the garden; our informal and collectively run evening program offers food, music, and space to re-create in nature. with the infrastructure of our starter kit at the pilot location we are bridging ecological awareness and hands-on engagement. by reclaiming urban space and co-creating with community and soil, we empower autonomy within our food systems – attentively determining how we build the worlds we live in. to rewild is to resist dependency and reimagine freedom not as an escape from the world, but as a deeper reciprocity within it. with this in mind, you are welcome to join us as a guest, free of charge and with no obligation. we are not orienting these events on profit, but your contributions will directly crowdfund future steps of our project. you are welcome to gather in our garden for informal and collectively run evening program. check below and please be aware of our social media for changes and updates (@rewild.farming) at spoorzone fuutlaan, we have transformed an abandoned industrial plot (planned to become a park around 2030) into a thriving green space using our starter kit: a modular workspace in a repurposed shipping container. we grow food and community, and we are part of a wider, urgent movement to regenerate not only soil, but also social order. by lowering the threshold to regenerative farming practices and restoring agency within our food system, our pilot project at spoorzone fuutlaan has become a communal third space. we invite you to join us and experience more-than-human collectivity during our DDW evening gatherings. we will be open from 17 – 22 to serve you fermented drinks, hot wholesomeness and fresh food from our open kitchen.

Image List

Filename	Caption	Credit
No images available.

The images above are included in the ZIP under /images.