

Fragments of Wonder

Hosted by: Meaningful Matter

Project Information (EN)

We present a collection of mirrors and interior products made from (100%) ceramic waste. Instead of showing cracks or flaws, the material reveals surprising qualities: glossy surfaces, vibrant textures, and unique patterns or colors that emerge only when ceramics are reimagined. At Dutch Design Week, visitors will encounter objects that combine circular design with aesthetic excellence. Looking into these mirrors is not just self-reflection, but a reflection on how value is created and how waste can be transformed into a resource of beauty. The collection we present contains new designed mirrors, pendant light and dinnerware, showcasing the variety of possibilities of working with ceramic waste as main resource for high quality ceramic production. Our vision is to shift the perception of waste in design and the ceramic industry. Our purpose is twofold: to pioneer new circular materials and to create social workplaces through their production. The core value of our design is transformation, turning overlooked matter into meaningful products that inspire both use and awareness.
